Message from the Director

I had no idea when I envisioned the creation of the Center for Women, Gender and Global Leadership (CWGGL), how that journey would begin. The generous gift from Howard University Trustee Jim Murren, and Heather Hay Murren set my path to this journey of creating a center of excellence for Black women, feminist activism and transformational global leadership. It has been seven months since the center officially launched on October 20, 2021, and I am humbled to see how far we have come.

With the announcement of the gift from Howard University Trustee Jim Murren and Heather Hay Murren in November 2020, I immediately began mapping the structure and design of the new center, and programming was well on the way before we officially launched on October 20, 2021.

The biggest pre-launch event was in March 2021 when President Frederick signed on as a gender champion under the UN Women HeForShe Campaign. The second event that brought a sense of pride and achievement was the center's first program to celebrate International Women's Day, and this was done in the midst of the raging global pandemic, where we celebrated women first responders at Howard University Hospital.

Each day, I am learning to be the best leader I can be. I will be drawing from my personal experiences and the wise counsel of those who have freely given up their time and talent to mentor me. My leadership nugget for this quarter is:

"Surround yourself with people who value you, who respect your vision, who hold you up and not tear you down. A leader's worth begins with how much they value their strengths, skills and capabilities."

Dr. J. Jarpa Dawuni

Today, I am delighted to share with you our first report. What you will find here is a testament to my commitment to ensure that we built a solid foundation for a center that has the potential to truly be a global center of excellence for Black women. My small but growing team at the center has been an invaluable support to what we have achieved thus far. I am ever grateful to the Global Council of Leaders, the Advisory Board, Executive Council, Student Ambassadors and our team of volunteers and external supporters. The journey has just begun, and we need all the support we can get to scale up and expand beyond the frontiers of Howard University. With the continued commitment from the University administration, the support of faculty, staff, and students, I have no doubt that we will continue to grow and have a global impact.

Please join us in celebrating the work we have done in the past seven months of our existence. My leadership style is based on collaborative and inclusive decision-making. I welcome the opportunity to collaborate with partners who share our vision. I have always maintained that the center is a blank canvas, and everyone is invited to the table to contribute their ideas, talent, time, treasure, and activism in painting a beautiful picture of what women's leadership ought to be. I also draw on the wise sayings of my ancestors through the African proverb "if you want to walk fast, walk alone, if you want to walk far, walk together." I invite you to walk with us at CWGGL to a place where the rights and leadership of all women are respected, acknowledged, and valued. Together we can build a center that meets the needs of the people we serve.

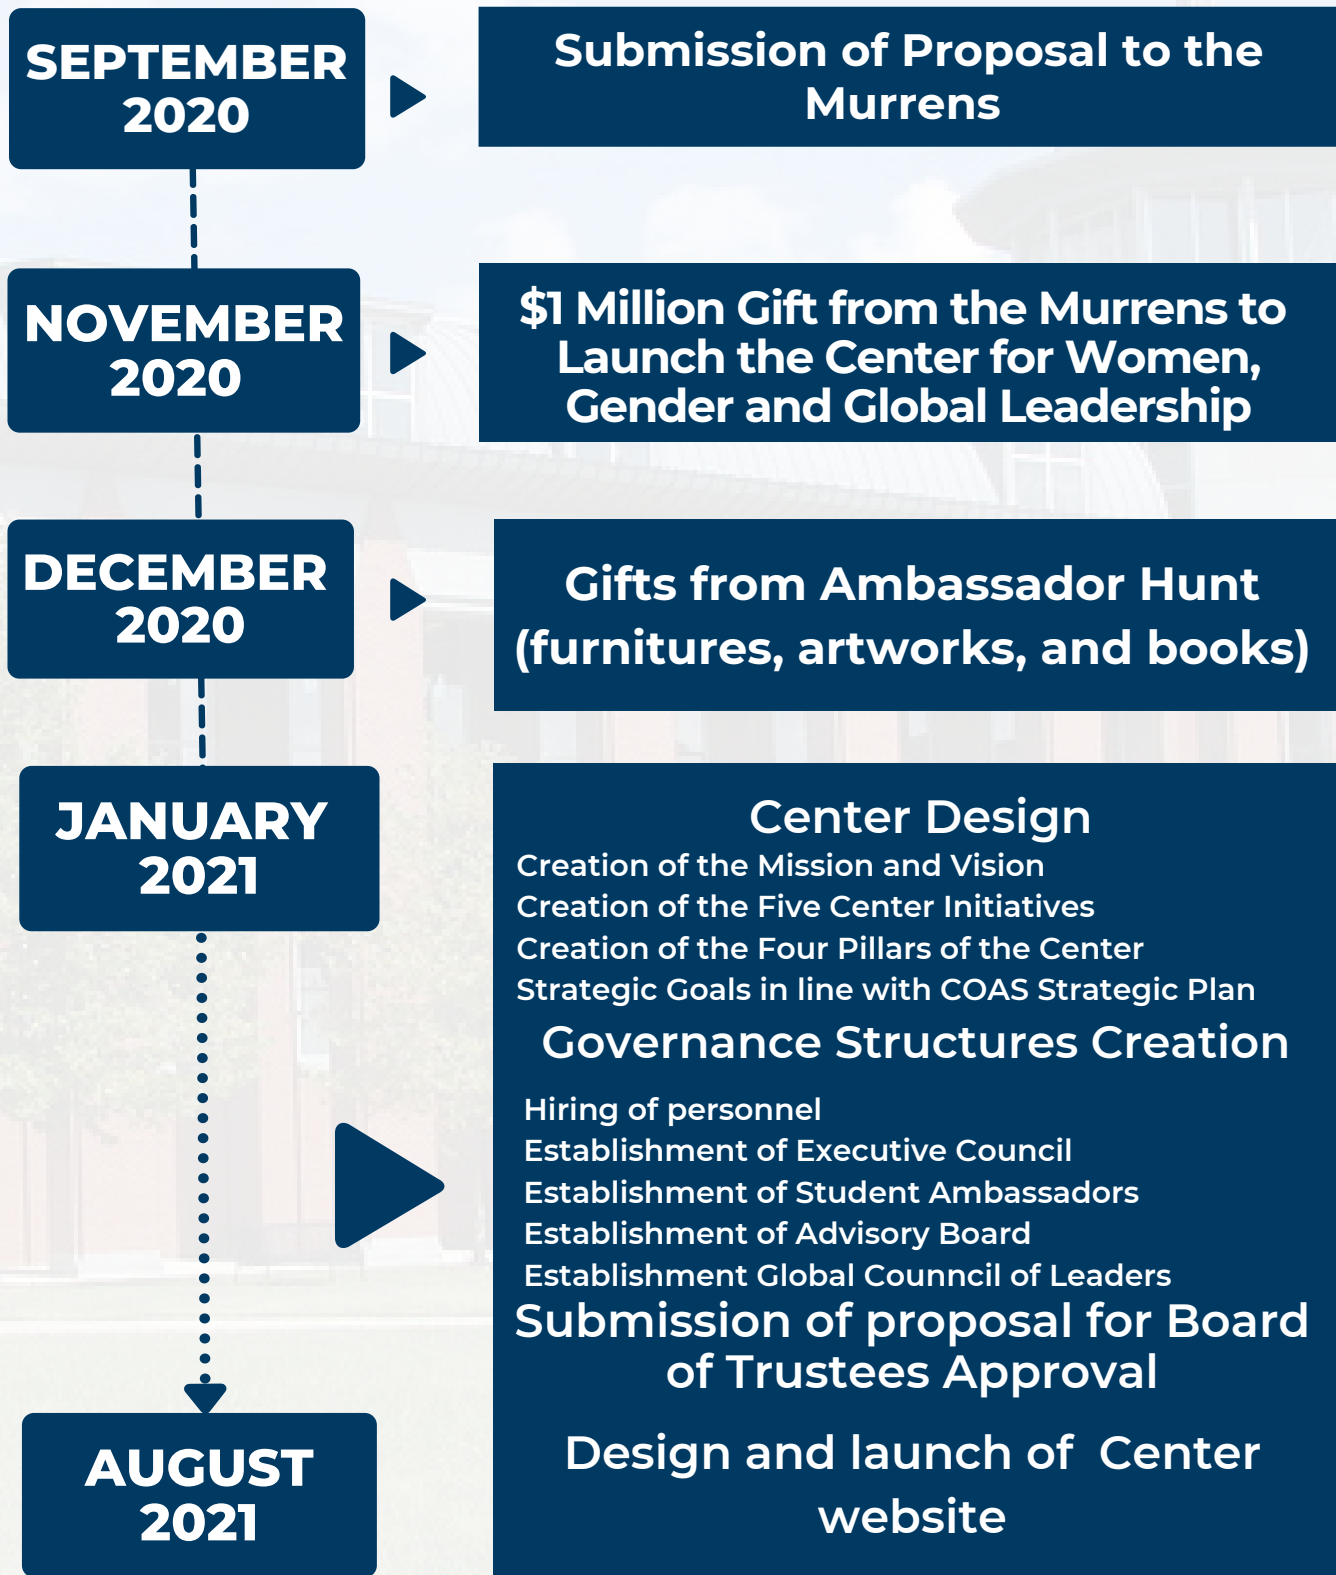

J. Jarpa Dawuni, Esq., Ph.D.

FACULTY PROGRAMMING

Programs	Description
Faculty Collective	The Faculty Collective is an interdisciplinary forum for Howard faculty and staff, created to support and encourage Discussion, Scholarship, and Activism on gender and women's issues on campus, nationally and internationally.
Interdisciplinary Collaborative Networks	The Interdisciplinary Collaborative Network (ICN) aims at contributing to the fulfillment of the goals set by the Center for Women, Gender, and Global Leadership (CWGGL). To achieve this goal, the ICN creates a space for Howard University faculty to carry out research on women and gender studies and foster service-learning. The scope of gender studies is vast as it includes disciplines ranging from the humanities to the sciences.
Mothers of the Mecca	The mission of Mothers of the Mecca is to reimagine the stigmas associated with parenthood when faculty and students are wearing multiple professional hats and instill pride and community around parenting at Howard University. In research efforts, the project aims to capture the student, faculty, and staff parent population as well as the experiences and needs of the community.

RECURRING PROGRAMS

Events	Description
Chat & Chew	Chat and chews are co-sponsored with various organizations on campus. They offer an opportunity to discuss, in an informal setting, the important issues within an academic field.
Global Leadership Dialogue Series	For GLDS, the Center invites global thought-leaders and policymakers to share their experience and provide guidance for the future generations in their field.
Guest Speaker Series	The GSS offers insights on the work of scholars. It is an opportunity for scholars to discuss their publications and answer questions that students may have.
Fireside Chat	Fireside chats are interactive dialogues between professionals of different fields on a topic chosen by the Center. This allows the audience to gain insights from different perspectives.
Roundtable Discussions	The roundtable discussions provide a platform in which the participants engage on topical issues.
